

WHAGS September Program

A Blueprint to Crafting Ancestor Profiles

Presenter: Lynn Palermo

Embark on your family history writing journey with Ancestor Profiles as your springboard. These concise narratives serve as the perfect introduction to capturing the essence of your ancestors when a full story seems daunting. They offer a manageable starting point that not only saves time but also acts as a litmus test for uncovering potentially larger stories waiting to be told.

Let these profiles be your compass, guiding you through the rich history of your lineage, igniting your passion for storytelling along the way.

Lynn Palermo is a writing & accountability coach helping family historians turn their family history research into shareable and entertaining stories. Also known as the Armchair Genealogist, for the past 15 years, Lynn has coached thousands of students through her signature writing programs in the Family History Writing Studio, www.familyhistorywritingstudio.com. She is a published author with a creative writing certificate from the University of Toronto.

Based in Ontario, Canada, Lynn has written a multi-generational heirloom book, a family history children's book, and a novella-length family history narrative along with many short stories and ancestor profiles. She's produced several how-to workbooks for the family historian and offers numerous in-person and virtual writing retreats, workshops, and webinars.
